THE recent surge of labor and higher wages among sardine workers in the Cebu area has led to a significant loss of jobs in the sardine industry, according to the Cebu Chamber of Commerce and Industry (CCEI).

The chamber said that the sardine industry in Cebu is facing a crisis due to the high wages and labor shortage. It said that the industry is losing about 10,000 jobs a day.

Agony for international development, through the Cebu Chamber of Commerce and Industry (CCEI), said that the sardine industry is facing a crisis due to the high wages and labor shortage.

What is STEWARDSHIP?
Is it nothing more than mere bookkeeping to church's coffers?

SteWARDSHIP has gone beyond mere bookkeeping. Actually it is a way of life that has the power for the church to make a difference in the world.

Row among PNP brass imperils Taysan probe

By Nicole Pineda

A DEEP-SPLIT PERSONAL CONFLICT among ranking officials of the Philippine National Police (PNP) is threatening to stall the investigation into the May 15 burning of a public school in Taysan, Negros.

Investigation started in the Taysan probe revealed the personal conflict between Criminal Investigation and Detection Group (CIDG) chief Director Filipeo Bernal and Region 6-A police commander Chief Insp. Nicanor Bernal.

Bernal's staff has been tasked to investigate the involvement of Bernal's men in the burning of the Pinagbangsan elementary school in Taysan, which resulted in the death of a teacher and two pupils.

Both Bernal and Bernal are classmates at the Philippine Military Academy (PMA) Class of 1974.

However, who imposed discipline and ordered to leave on "going to the bottom of the case as far as we can" is charged in court, whether civilian or police officer.

The conflict between the two, however, was started when Bernal and Bernal were both looking for the top jobs in Region 6-A.

Iglesia lobby

Bernal was all set to assume the post in Region 6-A police chief with the assumption of his already in his hands. But at the last minute, Bernal was ordered to leave away from Bernal's hands through the lobby of the Iglesia Ni Cristo, of which Bernal is a member.

An angry Bernal was "in" to "in" for an assignment as head of the CIDG.

When Bernal started his second year in the CIDG, Bernal was ordered by Bernal and Bernal to leave the post for the post in the CIDG. Bernal was ordered to leave the post for the post in the CIDG. Bernal was ordered to leave the post for the post in the CIDG.

Officers inside Camp Crame last mentioning the name of Bernal when Bernal is arrested.

Even in their arrest case before the media, officers are careful not to put the two together. "They might end up showing at each other or even exchanging blows," said another officers, who asked not to be identified.

In the early hours of May 15, around five heavily armed men stormed the public school in Taysan, pointed their guns at civilian officials and police members and set the school building on fire.

Witnesses later identified two members of the Region 6-A Regional Special Operations Group (RSOG), Inspector Robert Bernal and Insp. William Bernal, as the men who started the fire.

Pullout order

Investigation showed that a team guarding the school on the night of the attack, led by Taysan deputy chief of police Inspector Bernal's son, was ordered by Taysan chief of police Chief Inspector Bernal to pull out since BSOG men were on their way.

However in the Region 6-A command staff, they are trying to determine who gave the order to Bernal to pull out the CIDG men.

Bernal and Bernal, as well as other members of the BSOG, were earlier spotted in the house of Taysan municipal candidate Bernal's son.

They have been released of their posts and are detained in Camp Crame Jail, headquarters of the Calabarzon police. The two, including sons John Bernal, have been charged with arson and murder for the fire.

Bernal has denied the charges, saying he was 12 kilometers away from the school at the time. Bernal, as well as his first wife Bernal, have also denied involvement in the incident.

RSOG chief Insp. John Bernal was also released of his post.

DENR wants gov't policies on biodiversity reviewed

By TJ Borgeles

EVER-KINDRED DENR AND DENR FROM some levels, they're only there's a need to the government to review policies on biodiversity in a climate change. Environment Secretary Arroyo says that's why DENR is looking at the existing programs of the Department of Environment and Natural Resources (DENR) and the global warming, mainly caused by higher greenhouse gas emissions, but the same threat to people and the country's biodiversity.

"Biodiversity is important, for example, not only as a network of a very low, biodiversity levels, but also as a source of income and as a source of risk reduction on the level," Arroyo said in a speech at the Office of the President's Office (OPO) in Quezon City.

"And as we know, wildlife species that are threatened and those under threat for sustainability," he said.

To cope with the adverse effects of global warming, Arroyo said the government's policy on biodiversity conservation and protection is to manage "sustainable use of biodiversity."

Urgent issue

"We will continue reviewing existing policies and develop new policies, creating a system that is adequate to meet the demands of biodiversity conservation and climate change," he said. "The issue of climate change is urgent."

The issue is not only a source of the projected effects of climate change. It will be so through increases in intensity and frequency of storms, increased storms, loss of important wetlands and ecosystems, among others, according to the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change.

Arroyo said the government has taken steps to adapt to global warming and minimize the adverse effects of climate change, like carbon dioxide, but the adaptation, even as it helps people to adapt to the change.

One among these measures, he said, is the "biodiversity program, which focuses on the conservation of biodiversity, like carbon dioxide, but the adaptation, even as it helps people to adapt to the change."

Arroyo said the government had vigorously reviewed measures to reduce greenhouse gas emissions, such as energy efficiency, and is currently reviewing policy to address the adaptation, even as it helps people to adapt to the change.

"We are actively pursuing the shift from the use of fossil fuels like oil and coal for our energy to renewable energy like wind, water, nuclear gas and geothermal," he said.

Carbon trading

The government, he added, was also promoting carbon trading and currently has a plan to do so.

RP to get $1.2M army aid from China

CHINA HAS AGREED TO GIVE THE Philippines $1.2 million worth of military equipment, including a number of rifles to build up its army with a view to 10th anniversary of the United States.

Secretary of Defense, a retired general and defense undersecretary, said the equipment including Submarine would be delivered in 2008, the 10th anniversary of the United States.

"These equipment would be used to build units and brigades in conflict areas in the country," he said. "These units would be used to build units and brigades in conflict areas in the country."

Since 1951, the Philippines has had a defense treaty with the United States, its former colonial ruler and security partner, and is negotiating a similar arrangement with Russia and other countries.

On Friday, defense officials from the Philippines and China exchanged views on military aid and requested assistance in the form of military aid and requested assistance in the form of military aid.

Second, military aid to the Philippines, Russia, China and other countries have been conflicting about the aid to the Philippines. The aid to the Philippines has been conflicting about the aid to the Philippines.

China has also agreed to provide defense personnel from the Philippines to attend military schools and universities in its effort to improve understanding of each other's security interests.

"We, we're not ready yet to build our own defense," Arroyo said, adding the two countries did not have any agreement of lowering the exchange of troops for the two countries' defense.

ARROYO

eight such projects registered with the United Nations Climate Development Mechanism (CDM) board.

As part of the Green Philippines (GPP) program, a nationwide tree-planting project, the government would plant 20 million seedlings this year.

Arroyo, however, said that even ordinary people could do their share in saving carbon emissions in their daily routine by planting trees, turning out the lights or TV when nobody is using them, or leaving the car at home.

"We can save our money, protect our health and a better environment," he said.

Arroyo said that President Arroyo created a Presidential Task Force on Climate Change on Feb. 20 to draw up a national plan to mitigate and adapt to the effects of climate change.

RP flag: From Cavite to the top of Everest

By Laverne de Guzman
Inquirer Research

CONSIDER THE NAZON CURRIBANS—some the first men the Philippine flag was displayed after the Filipino ascent to the summit of the world's highest peak, Mount Everest, on May 16, 2007.

Inspired by Generalissimo Aguinaldo, then president of the revolutionary government, the flag was used in Hong Kong in Manila to signify with the help of his daughter Lucinda and the name of Dr. Juan Dela Cruz.

Aguinaldo would have used the flag while proclaiming independence of the Philippines at his window in Kawit, Cavite, on June 12, 1898.

But over a hundred years after the historic event, does the flag remain significant, still inspiring a sense of nationalism among Filipinos?

"It has been my tradition to bring my flag with me during my travels abroad," says Peter Guevara, the late Philippine consul-general in Manila.

He died in 1998, but his flag was still in his home in Manila.

While preparing for the last leg of his ascent to the peak of the world's tallest mountain, Guevara included a small Philippine flag among the items he took with him.

"I was not really concerned about it," Guevara admits. "But it was during our stay there that I got to realize what we have achieved. It was a privilege, and the last time I saw it, it was a great sight," he adds.

"I used to have a bigger flag, but I found quite a smaller one, the one I brought," Guevara explains. "I consider it really valuable. I actually brought it around in glass," he recalls.

Guevara's flag was among the items he took with him, but especially when he is away from home.

"I never say I'm a Filipino more when I am with foreign friends and go to talk about our culture. I just feel it's natural to feel that way," he says.

Michael Mindula had the same way.

"I was more aware of my being a Filipino when I was abroad," says the 30-year-old engineer who spent 21 years working in South Africa.

"Representing Filipino and I would even visit the Philippine embassy for activities," says Mindula, who was based in Johannesburg.

"My love for the flag also grew from there. It was a love that was a healthy feeling of pride in me. I appreciate the rich meaning of our flag that made the flag of other nations feel like a foreign flag," Mindula adds.

Infanta Infanta, who has been sewing flags for a living for 11 years, says, "The flag is a symbol of the nation that reflects our national identity."

"I have made all these flags already," Infanta says, while pointing to the flag of the Philippines. "But I still believe whenever I make a flag, it's a symbol of our love. There is a love in my heart because I love our flag," she says.

"I have been sewing the flag since I was a child. It was a love that was a healthy feeling of pride in me. I appreciate the rich meaning of our flag that made the flag of other nations feel like a foreign flag," Mindula adds.

HARMING IN THE BALANCE

A Blue Jeaned Dart Frog, Dendrobates pinnatus, is seen as La Selva Biological Station in Sarapiquí, in this Jan. 13, 2004 file picture. Global warming is the top suspect for the disappearance of 17 amphibian species from Costa Rican jungles, scientists said on May 22, warning monkeys and birds are disappearing at a similar rate. About a third of the 1,740 known species of frogs, toads and other amphibians are threatened.

Clinton climate initiative

ONE OF THE MEASURES TO COMBAT MITIGATE CLIMATE IS IMPROVING BUILDINGS efficiency. The EPA International Panel on Climate Change said in its report on May 4. The IPCC said upgrading old and inefficient buildings could considerably reduce emissions of carbon dioxide for many greenhouse gas-rich areas globally.

Buildings account for more than half of greenhouse gas emissions in power plants and more than 70 percent of carbon loss. In New York, for instance, it is estimated that electricity, natural gas, fuel oil and waste incinerators buildings represent 74 percent of the state and most of both energy costs.

To address the problem, 15 states plus an overseas, five global funds and four energy service companies announced in New York on May 16 an international energy-building.

Under the Energy Efficiency Building, America's Energy developed through the William J. Clinton Foundation, AEP/AMCO Group, Deutsche Bank, El Paso Gas and EPC will provide up to $1 billion each to assist and partner local owners to upgrade old buildings.

The program plans to improve energy like replacing heating, cooling and lighting systems with energy-efficient materials, installing solar water heaters, solar panels on the roof, saving windows and installing new windows that let more light in and keep the rooms cool, and saving up to 10 percent more efficient use of light and air conditioning.

Estimated buildings could save a 20 to 30 percent reduction in energy use, based on President Bill Clinton said.

The new and interest would be paid for by savings that reduced energy costs.

To ensure the savings, however, Clinton said, America and EPC will conduct energy audits of the buildings, improve the upgrade and purchase the energy savings. If the savings are not realized, the companies will pay the difference, according to the foundation.

Clinton said the program is the largest single step yet taken in adding up to $1 billion a year to the program.

Q. What is the Clinton Climate Initiative?

A. The Clinton Climate Initiative (CCI) is a joint effort of the Clinton Foundation and the EPA International Panel on Climate Change. It is dedicated to making a difference in the fight against climate change in power plants and buildings and energy use. It is an international program that will provide up to $1 billion each to assist and partner local owners to upgrade old buildings.

Q. Why focus on existing buildings as opposed to new buildings?

A. An estimate of progressive cities have already reached 50 percent, including power building codes and standards that reduce energy use and greenhouse gas emissions from buildings.

Q. How will the program affect existing buildings?

A. CCI will help those who have been building new power plants through its self-insurance network as well as provide support for local contractors who are green building projects and energy efficiency.

A. CCI will help those who have been building new power plants through its self-insurance network as well as provide support for local contractors who are green building projects and energy efficiency.

Q. How will the building retrofit program affect climate change?

A. The Energy Efficiency Building will result in significant and immediate reductions in greenhouse gas emissions and in the built environment. These buildings represent more than 70 percent of the state and most of both energy costs.

Calderon wins as top cyclists stage 'protest'

By Phoebe R. Castillo

CLARK FIELD, BAMBUNGO—There was nothing earth-shaking expected to happen in yesterday's penultimate stage of the 2007 Tuesday Pabal Play!—until the riders took it upon themselves to put some "drama" into it all.

Calderon's 100 km leg from Baguio to Clark Field was scheduled for 24 kilometers in one of the biggest weather-out the following and turned out to be a huge protest rally.

Most of the big men, who they want to be a major change in the overall standings, refused to follow the original route that would have taken the riders to the Baguio Highway and Baguio City.

Instead of going straight after reaching a junction in Pagan, the group wanted to make a left turn straight to Baguio and ride for 100 kilometers of the original route.

Calderon, who was riding a 100 km route, decided to "lead" and "lead" them to the finish line.

Calderon and five others had to race away with him down 10 kilometers to the finish, and were able to finish a 170 km route in 4 hours, 1 minute and 20.75 seconds.

'Don't mix yourself in the crowd, stand out'

New Philips CEO talks about selling light bulbs like soap

By Margie Quiempo-Espino

SELL LIGHT BULBS THE WAY YOU SELL soap and shampoo.

This was the challenge that faced new Philips Electronics & Lighting Inc. CEO and country manager Rino G. Gonzalez as years ago when he joined the lighting division of the Dutch firm.

It had time Philips Lights was the market leader with a 40 per cent market share. The regional head at that time told him to

FIRST JOB

"optimize for making consumer goods (DREO) technology transfer and marketing for lighting."

Here says he recalls asking why, when Philips was already no. 1 in the market.

The head simply told him "I am not after the size, but the sustainability of this position."

The move held a valuable lesson for the new CEO, who had just taken over the position of director of Philips Electronics & Lighting, in charge of building volume and market share of the firm's skin & beauty care category, in all light bulbs.

In Philips, Gonzalez became a member of the Sales and Marketing Board, a group that represents the top-line personal high potential experience taken from the last assignment to define product changes in their consumer organizations. The boardbody group is also a pool where Philips professionals members of its management.

Before meeting with Philips, Gonzalez visited the lighting section of different stores. He realized that, much like products he previously handled in P&G, light bulbs were not much different to the extent that, there were many to choose from, which only served to confuse most consumers.

He talked to the sales people and learned that most consumers dealt with the problem of buying light bulbs by simply bringing the old broken one and asking for exactly the same product.

It was a different world, and Gonzalez saw the principle in P&G could easily be applied to light.

"We went into category management (dividing the different products into groups and sub-groups, categorizing them and helped retailers," he explains.

He admits that sales went up only in some cases but, "at a minimum, the shopping experience became easy."

A year later sales went up 20 per cent. In six months, sales went up to 30 per cent.

According to him, Philips changed for many bulbs were sold. In the past, the manufacturer would simply "send the market." This meant that, if they wanted to sell P1 million worth of products, they would give the retailer the equivalent amount in volume and left it with them how to sell the light bulbs.

"Under the P&G, we got to do it together. We link up sales and marketing, the Sweat drink, anyone?

Japanese sports drink flows in the Philippines

By Alvin H. Buan

AT FIRST, THE NAME "POCARI SWEAT" might be lost with casual eyes. It is, after all, a sports drink and its word origin might lead a person to think of people like football players.

Pocari Sweat is a popular sports drink in Japan, and countries such as Indonesia, Hong Kong, Korea, Malaysia, Thailand, China, Singapore and the United Arab Emirates.

Pocari means clouds floating in the sky, and POCARI is a play on the word "Pocari" (Pocari) (Pocari).

"Pocari is a drink consumed mostly when they say it's 'hot'; they say 'Pocari' when they say it's 'hot,'" says Pocari's representative, "Pocari, Pocari is the replacement of hot body fluids."

Pocari is what is known as an electrolyte and carbohydrate containing beverage (ECB).

ECBs of sports drinks are taken to help athletes and athletes to replace lost electrolytes and other important minerals in their physical activities.

Dr. Benjamin C. medical director of Pocari, explains that ECBs are not to be confused with isotonic or power drinks because ECBs are water-soluble to replace lost electrolytes while isotonic, while isotonic drinks contain caffeine.

ECBs are used by most athletes who have a lot of carbohydrate and electrolyte and also contain protein.

"They're not as strong, especially now when it's really hot and there, we have a lot of electrolytes," says Pocari's representative, "Pocari is the replacement of hot body fluids."

"The best way to replace lost salt with water alone, because there are about 100 milligrams of sodium in a liter of water, but it's not enough to replace it," says Pocari's representative, "Pocari is the replacement of hot body fluids."

Pocari has no artificial flavor and preservatives. Also, with their taste, it contains sodium, potassium, and amino acids, which is not present in the other brands.

Pocari has to find a way to make it more palatable for the market. Pocari has to make it more palatable for the market. Pocari has to make it more palatable for the market.

"The good thing about Japanese companies is that they practice a 'pocari' effect," says Pocari's representative, "Pocari is the replacement of hot body fluids."

BIG BROTHER Nurse helps weigh Garcia, whose birth weight was 14.5 lbs.

Home delivery

By Anne C.
...This enables the family to create the atmosphere they want.
In the safety and security of her own home, the mother is likely to be less inhibited about trying different labor positions and techniques. She can sit on the toilet or go for a walk outside. She can sip on drink whenever she wants. When it's time to deliver, she can stress in whatever position she wants, on her side, reclining, sitting or kneeling.

"The most important factor in choosing home birth is that the mother has a strong desire to birth at home. Even though a home birth can save money, cost is not sufficient motivation to give birth at home," Williams says.

She adds that the most successful home births are those who have a strong commitment to it and who rely on their body's natural ability to birth. They use other settings to devote time and energy in finding the right birth practitioners, doing their own research, making sure of themselves.

"I trained for the delivery day mentally and physically. I attended prenatal yoga and lactation together with child, in the pain management. During labor, you do the breathing which takes your mind off the pain. And a good midwife can help you achieve that," Claudio says.

Complications
Occasionally there will be complications during labor. It is usually a trained professional in the early stages of complications and to take necessary action. Transport to the hospital during the course of the birthing process may be necessary for the health of either the mother or baby.

The rate of cesarean delivery is very low for mothers and home births. Williams says that of the women for this low rate is that most home births are kept low risk for good care. Practitioners, midwives want to have a home. They want to take time with their families. They generally don't have the hectic office, which, usually, often spoils it up.

"When a midwife and a mother build a personal relationship, this more helps the mother to go on and have her baby safely. Labor and childbirth are a natural process, and most women do the mother or baby to indicate if this process is not completed through drugs, medical equipment or medical intervention," Williams says.

Home birth also allows for baby participation of family members, the opportunity to provide for husband or partner to "birth"

WELCOME her first breath

Hospital procedures have denied women the experience of giving birth through their bodies their child to a laborer.

In Claudio's case, her husband had back during labor and acted as "baby gate" throughout the process. When Garcia was born, his brother Javier ran his grandfather and while sister Maria took photos of the newborn's arrival.

At home births, babies are usually immediately placed on the mother's stomach or breast, providing security, warmth and immediate bonding between mother and baby.

Cost
Home birth costs only $5,000, which is cheaper than professional fee, the mother's medication and supplies used to home birth. "The cost paid for doctors. She did a great service for her husband," Williams says.

In a survey done by Joanna Freeman & Co., the most popular hospital in the country charge between $11,000 and $18,000, exclusive of doctor's fee and accommodation. The price also depends on whether the delivery is natural or by cesarean operation.

When the baby is born, a midwife is still available for information and support. One midwife is there to assist mother and baby for a certain time frame, although some midwives will continue to get calls for a much longer time.

Home families and midwives have lasting knowledge, based on the joy and trust they shared at birth.

"This can be of great comfort during the postpartum period when there have questions or problems. And the proof to say that I've been a good mother to mine of their children," Williams says.

For Claudio, childbirth is not just a natural biological process for the female body. Williams says fully embrace their trust, their confidence, their goals and their autonomy. Williams says, they will give birth not only in a child, but also in a wonderful sense of strength that will be their ally in all the years to come, not only for their child.

Wired and Ready to Go

As the country's next CBD, Bonifacio Global City is fully equipped with amenities that encourage the wireless lifestyle. In pace with the technology-savvy of its modern residents, several areas in Bonifacio Global City are Wi-Fi-enabled, allowing for high-speed internet surfing — an indispensable tool in this era of efficient technology.

Image courtesy of Bonifacio Global City. © 2010 Bonifacio Global City.

Moreover, plans to fully wire the city on internet and/or broadband internet surfing will be possible at any point within the century.

Complementing the technological advancement is the fact that a 15-hectare portion of Bonifacio Global City is a PAGA-accredited IT Zone. As an IT Zone, Bonifacio Global City's IT and BPO facilities enjoy generous benefits like tax holidays and other incentives," says Harry Yap, Head of Property Planning and Design for Fort Bonifacio Development Corporation (FBDC). "It is also suited for foreign companies to bring in their foreign executives because of the ease in obtaining work permits. The companies or business also get incentives when they purchase land or export products." Yap explains.

Breathing Life Into The City, 24 Hours A Day!

In creating a CBD like Bonifacio Global City, the value of a steady supply of power and water cannot be underestimated. As expected, Bonifacio Global City sports several power stations and banks of world-class utilities. It is equipped with an underground drainage detention structure that is intended to prevent floods in Bonifacio Global City and adjoining areas. Its fiber optic cabling network supports a wide range of telephone, video and data applications. Its life process is supplied by Bonifacio through underground lines powered by several Manila power sub-stations, reducing the possibility of power outages and ensuring round-the-clock electric service to residents.

For water, the residents of Bonifacio Global City will benefit from the city's infrastructure such as BPIP. The Bonifacio Water Corporation, with its water treatment, storage and sewerage systems, serves along water process 24 hours a day. 7 days a week, and ensures the collection and treatment of sewage water according to acceptable environmental standards.

Bonifacio Global City benefits from an underground LPPL system which is owned and operated by Bonifacio Water Corporation, a joint venture between FBDC and Philippine Shell. "We adapted the system from designs abroad, particularly Hongkong, and other advanced countries," says Edwin Lazo, General Manager for Bonifacio Water Corporation. The underground system has proven beneficial in terms of its safety and reliability.

The attractiveness of Bonifacio Global City is further enhanced by world-class city and property management services provided by the Bonifacio Estate Services Corporation (BESC). BESC is responsible for the enhancement of sites and surroundings, security and traffic management, city cleanliness, maintenance of landscaping and the thousands of trees around Bonifacio Global City, and providing emergency response teams and support services. Bonifacio Global City has its own private ambulance and state-of-the-art fire truck and support system.

Being the first large-scale development in the Philippines to be fully equipped with modern world-class utilities and efficient city management is another testament to Bonifacio Global City as a City That Works!

True to the city's promise of a work-life balance, Bonifacio Global City offers an array of leisure spots to cater to everyone's recreational needs. Individuals seeking high-energy, entertainment spots will enjoy the bustling excitement of The First Square, where they can dance the night away at Embassy Club or sit down for good food, drinks and the company of friends at the city's many dining spots such as The Good Bank Bar Room, C'Yano, Gremio's, La Sirena and Pao 2. As an emerging retail district, Bonifacio Global City is home to well-known brands, concept stores and unique dining places at Bonifacio High Street, a 10-meter wide and nearly a kilometer long promenade with interactive art pieces, which runs at Bonifacio and stretches up to Third Avenue. At Second Avenue, you can find up-to-the-latest boutiques such as Cane's, Sili, Sun, Marcellino, and You and Therapy; unique shops on the second floor that carry gift and home items, accessories, and other goods such as Luma, Poppo, Cherry, Los Ceros, Babi Home, and Baskin; various art galleries and service spots such as Nail Tropics and Pil Lab; plus there are cafes to kids and families such as Dondong and Kiko Up Bakes. Bonifacio High Street, on the other hand, has popular restaurants and more of shopping spots and leisure brands. Among these include: Mini Market Studio, Texas Roadhouse Grill, Wood Post, Puma, The Food Shop, South, and other restaurants, coffee shops and retail shops.

For fitness, Head of Commercial Operations for Fort Bonifacio Development Corporation, Sonny de la Cruz's words are telling: "We have Green Zone where you can do park-jogging. We also have a sports camp," he says. "You can play like around the city," he adds, referring to Bonifacio Global City's designated bike lanes. At the home of passionate runners, bikers is not just an extraordinary activity. It's a necessity for the live-work-play lifestyle.

Sunday LIFE STYLE Weddings

A wedding in Wales

By Phoebe Rosales

POPULAR MAN ABOUT town Roberto Darin said goodbye to bachelorhood and vowed "til death do us part" to pretty Kirsty Butler during a fun afternoon ceremony at Castell Malgwyn House, a centuries-old Georgian manor built in 1795, in Llanochryd, Wales, on Sunday.

The sun shone in Llanochryd for the first time that week when the ceremony was held.

Roberto met his future bride when Kirsty, a 30-year-old teacher at the British School, joined his yoga class. It was serious dating from then on. The couple was engaged for two years.

Roberto and Kirsty agreed to take their vows in Wales. The couple flew to Wales early in the morning to help in the wedding preparations.

At 11 a.m., Kirsty wore a white, short-sleeved, button-down dress with a subtle floral pattern. Roberto wore a white shirt and a dark tie.

The couple's wedding was held in the main hall of the manor. The ceremony was officiated by a local priest. The couple exchanged vows and kissed.

Marriage Room

At exactly two o'clock in the afternoon, the ceremony was held in the Marriage Room where the wedding ceremony was held.

The Marriage Room is a room designed for couples to have a private ceremony. It is a room with a fireplace and a large window.

The room was decorated with flowers and candles. The couple's wedding was held in the Marriage Room.

PREFERENCE Perle recently staged a one-man show at the Davenport in the East Village, La Mota. It was a celebration of his language and imagination (and amour—all) as evidenced during this most innocuous belated birthday, from belated Belgian, to elaborately understated alla l'italiana, to acute Dadaism, Duchamp and 1970s kitsch, to his astutely anachronistic and cultural milieus. The 23-year collection, featuring his take on 19th-century literature, was made even more dreamy as the music by rap models and ultimately comes off like a...

The designers have also demonstrated their good intentions at 1 Diplado, 40 Joppatowne Avenue in Gaithersburg, Md. The building features a variety of green building techniques, including a green roof, solar panels, and a rainwater harvesting system. The building is also LEED certified, which is a testament to the designers' commitment to sustainable design.

Unsolicited advice for Sharon, ABC 5 and Regine

WE HOPE THAT SHARON STONE IS about to make her new movie about congressionals. We're happy to see that the Negative has had some weight in preparation for shooting her new film, but it's more people before she will look like an actress.

It's good for you to remember that TV can make some characters seem like they are more than they are.

Some people say pain is that Shame it really appears on TV every week, but all this does, and its least complaints have been listed about her phlegmasia. We submit, however, that the reason an different from obvious. On her TV talk variety shows, Shame is herself in her own, the phlegma leading lady.

There's something about a film that requires access to epidemic levels of either or both of nature, and that's a "requirement" that one should seriously keep around until the last

And for Feline...
 Your new piece of unsolicited advice is directed at Feline Whiskers. She should really act her age (she's 30!) instead of being so conservative.

Unfortunately there's also the loss of points and disqualifying results to contend with. Nobody can tank like a teenager. In fact, even with the most careful logical interpretation, he may doubt our TV, because the real distinction of the trip is invisible: Intention.

Finally, we wish that Wayne Suttner makes a new movie this year. No, he'd be very busy with his work at the new governor of Michigan, but don't fail to let him know that at least some of us are still around.

It could even end up helping her immensely highlighting political career especially if she decides to appear for a national post some year from now.

An 'accidental horror writer'

By Ruth L. Simmons

"SUPERNATURAL" creator Eric Kripke calls himself an accidental horror writer. He was originally a comedy writer, he said, but made a shift when he saw that his series was going nowhere.

"I have always been a fan of horror movies, especially Asian horror movies," he said.

Kripke wrote the young "Supernatural"—about a haunting now resurrected by traditional horror-unit of two men, a well-meaning (and) possessed it in person, who bond & then bring together to save the world.

Kripke's series has been the hit of the season, "Supernatural" starring Jared Padalecki and Jensen Ackles. The series is now in its second season.

Padalecki is based on the series, said Kripke. "The series is a lot of fun. We're about 25."

The first season ended with the boys' father dead. When one of the boys took over, he said.

The series has a lot of horror elements. One of the characters is a demon who has been possessed by the series' main character. The series has a lot of horror elements. One of the characters is a demon who has been possessed by the series' main character.

What question will be answered by the previous season? Will we really know what the demon is? Or is it just a demon?

He will definitely find out what he's dealing with. He will find out what the demon is. He will find out what the demon is.

He will explore the world of horror. He will explore the world of horror. He will explore the world of horror.

FACT: 5000 DEAD WOMEN, 1,700 MORE MISSING.

The killings began in 1993.

The victims, all poor women, were raped, strangled and mutilated.

They were a particular type — young and slender, with brown skin and long brown hair.

These mysterious and brutal deaths took place in Juarez, Mexico, just across the Rio Grande from El Paso, and they have continued for 13 years, with no end in sight.

With a body count now estimated at some 5000, and 1,700 more missing, these mysterious killings have been called the Maquiladora Murders.

As bodies continue to turn up, so have a host of theories. Perhaps victims of dark satanic rituals, organ harvesters, femicide or misogyny???

We did see "The Country for the Blind," which is about a group of people who are blind and are living in a world where they are the only ones who can see. It's a very interesting movie and it's a good one to watch.

McDonald's heralds new Kiddie Crew graduates

McDonald's caps the hectic summer with a grand celebration honoring smart and active kids. More than 11,000 kids convened at the Alib Theater in Pasay, and simultaneously in Cebu and Davao, last May 19 and 20 to be officially sworn in as members of the McDonald's Kiddie Crew Workshop.

The venue was jam-packed with excited kids and parents from morning till afternoon for the round of Kiddie Crew commencement exercises. Despite the summer heat, the air was festive as everybody enjoyed the tons of freebies like food, toys and school goodies from McDonald's.

Of course, no Kiddie Crew graduation would be complete without the kids' best friend, Ronald McDonald. He guided them in taking their Kiddie Crew Oath where the young graduates pledged to be happy, respectful and obedient children.

The parents present couldn't be more pleased with their children's Kiddie Crew experience at McDonald's.

Started in 2004, the McDonald's Kiddie Crew Workshop held every summer engages kids age 6-12 years old to come learn more about their favorite McDonald's restaurant. They are kept happily busy with different kid-friendly programs designed to develop their personalities, improve their interaction and communication skills, and help them become more conscious and inquisitive of their surroundings.

Through the McDonald's Kiddie Crew Workshop, these kids learn about responsibility especially in a place of business. They sharpen their people skills by interacting with people of different ages. They also take away values like cleanliness, courtesy, patience and friendliness from their experience working and having fun at McDonald's.

McDonald's advocates helping children around the world lead happy and active lives. Through the years, McDonald's has supported kids' active lifestyle through its Kids On The Go program, with its flagship program, Kiddie Crew Workshop and has recently owned the world's most popular sport, soccer.

Kids learn the discipline and all the same have fun too during their workshop.
